Helsingin yliopistolle vuonna 1828 myönnetyn vapaakappalelain mukaisesti yliopistolle oli luovutettava yksi kappale jokaista Venäjän keisarikunnan kirjapainojen tuotetta. Tämän lain johdosta Helsingin yliopiston kirjastossa on myös laaja kokoelma venäläisiä sanomalehtiä. Sanomalehtien osalta vapaakappalelaki toteutui parhaiten pääkaupunkien Moskovan ja Pietarin painatteista. Tosin niissäkin on verrattain paljon puutteita, kuten luettelosta käy ilmi. Vain kansainvälisellä yhteistoiminnalla päästäisiin parhaaseen kokonaisuuteen. Joitakin venäläisiä emigranttilehtiä on kuvausprojektissa myös mukana.

Luettelossa on kyrillinen kirjaimisto translitteroitu latinalaiseksi ISO/DIS 9 standardin mukaisesti. Sen periaatteena on, että yhtä kyrillistä merkkiä vastaa yksi latinalainen. Suurimmat erot ovat seuraavat: entinen šč on š, ju on û, ja on â.

Mikrofilmejä voi tilata osoitteella:

The legal deposit right to one copy of everything published in the Russian Empire was given to the University of Helsinki in 1828. Owing to this right Helsinki University Library now possesses large collections of Russian newspapers. The newspapers are mainly from the Moscow and St. Petersburg metropolitan areas, but there are annoying gaps in the material as this list shows. These gaps can be filled only by international co-operation such as this microfilming project. Some Russian emigrants newspapers have also been microfilmed within this project.

The transliteration of the Cyrillic characters into Latin letters is made according to the ISO/DIS 9 standard. One Cyrillic character is equivalent to one Latin character. The largest differences are: the former šč is š, ju is û and ja is â.
